

This morning's mail brings me a letter that will interest local watermelon growers, who are busy supplying hundreds of visiting truckers with the most famous product of southwest Arkansas.

The letter is from A. G. Whidden, retired advertising director of Arkansas Power & Light Co., Pine Bluff, now living at Warrington, Fla. Twenty-five years ago your correspondent and Al Whidden used to have many a debate over the electric lines at El Dorado—now from his Florida retreat Mr. Whidden still scans the daily press and jots down notes that might be helpful to old friends back in Arkansas.

His letter encloses a color layout and story from the Atlanta Journal Magazine of Sunday, July 25, telling how Crisp county, Georgia, has made itself the watermelon marketing and shipping center of the South.

Written by B. H. McLarty, executive secretary of the Crisp County Chamber of Commerce, the article says:

"This is not a one-county project. Growers from 15 counties in this region bring their melons to town, Cordale, Ga., perfectly situated for handling the crop, with three main line railroads and one short line, extending toward seven points of the compass; and two federal highways running east, west, north and south."

"The Crisp County Chamber of Commerce regards the sale of the melon crop as a major project. We get the name and address of every buyer and every trucker and send them bulletins about the crop and market through the radio. This year we had 50 freight car buyers on hand during the peak of the season, besides hundreds of truckers who hauled melons to points as far away as Canada."

"The old system of commission men has gone. Under that method the freight charges left him owing a few dollars on a good shipment. Now he sells his melons in Cordale for cash on the barrelhead."

Thanks for telling us, Mr. Whidden, it is a goal Hope and southwest Arkansas should, and will, work for. Transportation has been about as good as that in Cordale, Ga.; our watermelons are world famous—and all we need now is the proper sales organization.

Luce Wit Overshot Congress;

Now It Belongs to the People

By JAMES THRASHER

Ideally, politics should be the climax of an American's career in public life. Sometimes it is. There are plenty of examples, past and present, of high-minded men and women who have served in Congress or in the Cabinet or some other high post at a considerable sacrifice of time, money and comfort.

This not only helps offset the fact that every Congress has its share of members who couldn't hope to make $15,000 a year doing anything but eat, drink and sleep, but it also gives proof that political idealism is not entirely in vain.

In spite of this, however, we were rather glad to learn that Mrs. Clara Booth Luce is retiring from politics.

Mrs. Luce was a welcome ornament to our political life. She lent beauty, grace and wit to the Congress in which she served. She lent the same to a couple of Republican conventions. And we can't think of any two institutions that have been so often in need of a little glamour.

But we often suspected that Mrs. Luce was playing over the heads of her audience. To see what we mean one need only recall that the gentleman from Connecticut who in 1930 Congress was also the author of three excellent plays, a witty and satirical piece called "The Women," a delightfully hilarious successor called "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," and a more serious number titled "Margin for Error."

Then one may recall those ponderous witicisms by our legislators which, according to the Congressional Record, provoke a paroxysm of laughter. The hilarious conclusion is that Mrs. Luce, an AAA war farmer herself, got elected to Congress.

We need good minds in Washington, heaven knows, minds with agility as well as depth, minds whose deep purposes are spiked with the lightning of wit. But there are minds which cannot make up in what they contribute to Washington for what they subtract from our national life.

A distinguished career in government demands a certain mental brilliance. But the brilliance does not necessarily call for a high polish. So we cannot be too sorry that the scintillating Mrs. Luce has turned her back on politics and on Congress where, for the great things accomplished there, she was as old-fashioned as the snuff boxes in the Senate chamber.

But a public career, once sought and embraced, cannot be dismissed without a second thought. When one has asked and received the fellow citizen's confidence and votes, a small debt of responsibility remains. So we should like to suggest that ex-Congresswoman Luce owes the American electorate one thing—a play about politics.

We hope that she has one in her system, and that it is far enough along for an early winter production. By the time that the presidential election has come and gone, with all its flaming oratory and faithful implications, the American public will be in need of the sort of a relaxing evening in the theater that Mrs. Luce can provide when laymanly duties don't intervene.

The richest known cornucopia of modern tile and pottery makers, existed from 12,000 to 18,000 years ago in the Nile Valley of Egypt.

Municipal Pool Probably Will Open Saturday

Wading Pool for Children Already Open

The municipal swimming pool at Fair park is nearing completion and probably will open Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. The pool will not be filled until a later date. Gas will not be installed in time for hot water in the shower room but should be in by one to two weeks. The Rules and Regulations of the State Board of Health will be posted and must be strictly enforced. The clear, blue water can be kept clean by the help of the public.

Wading Pool Open

The wading pool at Fair park is now open to the public. The small pool will not be filled until 2 p.m. daily for afternoon waders. The pool will accommodate children up to age 7, and parents should accompany to prevent accidents. The water will be held to 12 inches depth and under so that Mothers may wade with their children at any time. Lights immediately over the pool have not been connected but will be in a few days. Arrangements have not been made for a supervisor to be on duty to serve here should be taken to avoid accidents.

Prices Reasonable

Prices of admission will be 20c for students, High School and under, and 35c for adults. Season tickets can be purchased and will probably cost $2.50 for the remainder of the season. Group prices of 10 or more are also available; such as Boy or Girl Scouts, Church Groups and others.

Swim suits will be available for rent at the pool. Towels will be sold for 15c. Tickets for the above will be bought at the regular ticket window on first entering. Items for sale will include nose clips, ear stoppers and water goggles.

The concession stand is available to the general public as well as to the swimmers. Typical prices at the stand will be Drinks 10c, hot dogs 10c, candy, potato chips, and cheests 5c. Aspirins, combs, and other small items will be available.

The First Aid room is located in the center of the bathhouse and can be reached through the door immediately under the clock.

The depth of the water in the pool begins at two and one half feet and a gradual increase to 10 feet under the diving boards. The diving end is separated from the swimming area by a life line completely across the pool.

The Life Guards will have completed an extensive water safety program under the direction of Hendrix Spraggins, Red Cross Water Safety Instructor.

Technically, the water will have a chlorine residue of .3 to .5 ppm (per million) and an alkalinity of 7.2 to 8.2.

Stassen Heads University of Pennsylvania

Philadelphia, July 29 — (AP) — The University of Pennsylvania today named Harold E. Stassen as its new president.

Announcement of the nomination of the 41-year-old Minnesotan came after a special meeting of the university's board of trustees. Salary terms were not disclosed.

The nomination was made "pursuant to the unanimous recommendation of the executive board of the university."

An announcement by the university said:

"The election of Governor Stassen will take place at a special meeting of the board to be held in September."

Dr. George William McClelland, now president of the university, will at that time be elected to the chairmanship of the university.

The former Minnesota governor, who was unsuccessful in his bid for the Republican party's presidential nomination last month, will become the youngest president in the university's history.

Stassen said in a telegram to the trustees:

"I have decided to accept your nomination to the presidency of the University of Pennsylvania. I look forward with enthusiasm to join with you in carrying out the superb tradition of this university."

"As you understand, I will continue a vigorous interest in public questions, particularly those which affect the future freedom, well-being and peace of men."

Subject to the fulfillment of my speaker's schedule on behalf of Governor Dewey (the Republican presidential nominee), I will be prepared to begin my duties at the opening of this university year in September."

Robert J. McCracken, chairman of the Penn board of trustees, said in making the announcement:

"Governor Stassen's outstanding executive qualities, rigidly tested by unique experience, both civil and military; his intense interest in higher education; his broad vision and fresh concepts of the function of institutions of learning as training grounds for useful citizenship; above all, his inspirational appeal to the youth of America, mark him as peculiarly adapted to the difficult but rewarding task of guiding the destinies of a great university."

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 29 —

(AP) — Yugoslav Communists repudiated the Cominform's attacks on their leaders today by electing Premier Marshal Tito as his country's new "divisive" leader.

Newspapers did not give the actual vote which took place at the close of the Yugoslav party's historic conference. They did not say whether the voting was unanimous.

Tito's re-election as party general secretary — the role Stalin fills in the Russian party — was expected momentarily. The new central committee's first task will be to elect officers. Balloting on the committee list went on all night, as the last item of business for a week-long party Congress in Belgrade.

Cominform — the International Communist Information Bureau — had asked Yugoslav Communists to throw out Tito and his principal lieutenants. The Russian-led organization accused the Yugoslav leaders of "divisive" leadership and of pursuing a hateful policy toward Russia.

Speakers at the party Congress said these accusations were false and unjust. Delegates hailed Tito as their "divisive" leader. They declared in every resolution that they intended to continue the policy line which the Cominform had vigorously censured.

Throughout the Congress, careful observers were convinced that repudiation of their desire to stay in the eastern bloc was sincere but that it applied only if the Cominform nations would drop completely their charges against Yugoslavia.

Southern observers were positive that Yugoslav partisans — who made up almost the entire Congress — were glorifying Stalin, the Red army and the Bolshevik (Russian) party because they felt that the Yugoslav leaders had praised the Russians for a more important reason — because they wanted to prove that the Cominform charge that the Yugoslavs are following "anti-Russian" policies was the most false of all.

Washington, July 29 — (AP) —

The FBI said today it will continue its search for three Communist leaders who disappeared after being indicted by a federal grand jury in New York last week.

A spokesman warned possible confederates of the trio that anyone who helps another person to escape him from being arrested is committing a crime himself. The maximum penalty is a fine of $1,000 and imprisonment for six months.

The New York grand jury indicted three Communist leaders, including Party chairman William Z. Foster and Secretary Eugene Dennis, for allegedly conspiring to overthrow the government by force. Nine were taken into custody and then released on bond.

The three still at large are Robert G. Thompson, New York state assemblyman; Gus Hall, Ohio chairman; and Gilbert Green, Chicago district chairman.

Talks May Lead to Session of Top Ministers

Moscow, July 29 — (AP) — Informed sources said today a four-power conference, possibly of foreign ministers, may result from talks of American and British representatives with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

U. S. Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith returned by plane to Moscow after talks in Berlin and London. With him was Frank Roberts, former British minister to Moscow, and a private secretary to British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

If the conversations have proved satisfactory, a conference before agreed upon, the informants said there is a good chance that the meetings will be held in Paris, about the time of the next United Nations assembly meeting, which will open Sept. 21.

The observers said they are not pessimistic about the chances of Germany as a whole.

The informants said Smith and Roberts probably will talk informally with the French ambassador before asking to see Molotov. There is no indication yet when the talks will start or when Molotov will be able to see the Western representatives. However, it is reported both times will be lost in setting the machinery in motion.

(Smith carried plans for the next step of the U. S., Britain and France toward settling the German crisis. He and the British and French ambassadors are expected to talk with foreign minister V. M. Molotov within a few days about the Berlin crisis, other German problems and perhaps the whole scope of European problems.)

"I have no statement to make," Smith said, as he stepped from the plane.

Looking about him after he was greeted by his wife, Smith smiled and said: "The weather has been perfect."

British Charge d'Affaires Geoffrey Harrison greeted Roberts, who also had no comment for the press. Also at the airport were the American Minister to Moscow, Roy K. Kuhlman, and the Canadian Charge d'Affaires, John Holmes.

Mackrell Asks Recount in 17 Counties

Little Rock, July 29 — (AP) — James Mackrell said today he would request a recount in 17 counties in his effort to prove that he actually ran second instead of third for governor in Tuesday's statewide preferential Democratic primary.

Least official returns show that "Uncle Mac" was trailing Jack Holt by 3,233 votes for the runner-up spot to Sidney McMath. The second man will enter the Aug. 10 primary against McMath.

The Little Rock radio showman said he wasn't satisfied with returns in Mississippi, Pulaski and 15 other counties which he didn't think it "advisable to list at this time."

Returns showed Mackrell as obtaining only 83 votes in Mississippi county.

"I've been on the radio from Bigheville every day at 1:30 for six months, and I've made personal appearances up there (Mississippi county) dozens of times, and each time I've drawn thousands of people," he declared.

In some Little Rock and North Little Rock polling places, an untold number of persons were unable to vote because the ballot supply ran out.

Mackrell cited this as reason for his requested recount in Pulaski county.

He declared he had one of the railroad shops here "sewed up," but that when employees got off from work ballots had been expended in their ward.

Since Tuesday a number of his Pulaski county followers have complained they didn't get a chance to vote, he asserted.

"Uncle Mac" said there probably wouldn't be election contests in all the 17 counties he questions. Attorneys will check the count, and perhaps ask a recount," he said.

Any recounts would have to be authorized by the individual Democratic county committees and financed by Mackrell, Secretary Harry G. Canby of the Democratic state committee said.

Mackrell said he would ask his radio listeners to contribute to the cost of any recounts.

Holt said today he believed recounts would show that he was "much further ahead of Mackrell than I am in these unofficial tabulations."

Returns from 2,100 of the state's 2,158 precincts gave a four leading candidate for governor.

McMath 57,970, Holt 59,590, Mackrell 56,537 and Horace Thompson 48,619. No other of the seven candidates got as many as 2,000 votes.

Thompson announced he intended to vote for McMath but would not campaign actively for the crusading young 18th district prosecutor.

Clear majorities in the preferential were necessary for nomination. Two incumbent congressmen and candidates in two statewide races got these majorities.

Dallas, Texas, July 29 — (AP) —

Two top Texas Democrats today lashed out at Dixiecrat efforts to hold a state referendum on whether to support the Truman-Roosevelt ticket.

W. W. (Bob) Calvert sent a seven-page statement to members of the state executive committee, which would vote to approve the referendum, saying that a referendum would set a dangerous precedent.

And Gov. Beauford H. Jester, issued a statement calling the proposal both impractical and illegal. Calvert said that although the Texas Dixiecrats were "no doubt well-meaning people," they had no authority from any convention to help elect nominees.

Slight-Relief From Prices in Some Areas

By The Associated Press

The nation's price picture was marked today by declines in food costs but new increases in industrial materials and products and new wage boosts affecting tens of thousands of workers.

Resistance by housewives to higher prices was eroded, with causing a number of meat price cuts.

Leading markets at Rochester, N. Y., marked down better cuts of meat six to 10 cents a pound. And in Chicago, the A and P food stores announced cuts of 21 cents a pound in steak prices.

Dun and Bradstreet reported its wholesale food price index fell 12 cents to $7.18 this week, down 12 cents from last week's 18 cents from the all-time high of $7.36 two weeks ago.

But the decline still represents less than two and one-half per cent in the sum total of wholesale prices of 31 foods in general use.

It was accounted for principally by lower grain and meat prices, and some food prices continued to go up — including flour, eggs, peas, potatoes and hogs.

In the other side of the picture were increases of two cents a pound in lead and three cents in zinc — both widely used in making consumer goods — and an American Tobacco Co. price boost expected to make its cigarettes cost one cent more a pack at retail.

Philip Morris and Co. and Reynolds followed suit with a price increase on its name brand cigarettes.

The zinc and lead increases followed by less than a week a steel price boost of $2 to $12 a ton. However, the Bethlehem Steel Co. announced cuts of one to three dollars a ton on a selected list of its steel products "to meet competition."

New wage increases included boosts of 10 to 15 cents an hour for more than 20,000 New York state truck drivers, 13 cents an hour for 15,000 state workers in Massachusetts, New York and Colorado, 11 cents an hour for 3,600 rubber workers in Ohio and Texas, and 10 cents an hour for an unspecified number of aircraft workers in California.

Chicago, July 29 (AP)—The trend in grains was a bit lower today. Losses were small except in the "thin" rye market, where prices dropped the 10 cent daily limit at times. Soybeans also weakened for relatively large losses.

A slackened demand for cash corn had some influence on that grain. The September contract, ahead yesterday on the cash corn strength, showed the weakest undertone. Cash dealers reported 125,000 bushels of corn were purchased on a to-arrive basis from the country.

QUESTION: Is a lipoma of the breast a malignant tumor? If removed should it give cause for further worry?

ANSWER: A lipoma is a tumor made up of fatty tissue. It is not cancerous. After removal there should be no cause for further worry.

The Doctor Says:

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.
Written for NEA Service

Many people complain of excessive perspiration. This may be confined to the hands, feet or some other region of the body, or involve the entire body. As a rule this complaint does not mean the presence of a serious disease.

Occasionally, general sweating of the body is caused by some disorder such as obesity, toxic goiter, or changing illness, or abnormality of the nervous system. Excessive sweating at night can occur in such conditions as tuberculosis or undulant fever.

Nervous Element Enters
The nervous element certainly enters into the question in many cases. Our sweat glands are controlled by what is called the sympathetic and para-sympathetic nervous systems, which are not under the control of the brain. These systems are, however, disturbed in those who are not particularly stable nervously. A common sign is profuse sweating, especially of the hands or feet. Often a tendency to easy blushing, fainting or like symptoms is also present. Occasionally, an attack can produce excessive sweating. If the condition, therefore, is really bad, an effort should be made to find out what is responsible.

Localized sweating of the hands, feet, or some other area is more common in the younger years and often tends to improve by itself on growing older. Sometimes soaking the hands or feet in hot water gives temporary relief.

Where body odor as well as sweating is bad, avoidance of foods containing onions or garlic may be helpful. Some drugs also contribute odor to perspiration. Exercise, exposure to sunlight, and frequent bathing, are sometimes recommended.

Note: Dr. Jordan is unable to answer individual questions from readers. However, each day he will answer one of the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Edith Executive J. Arvil Hickman landed a two and one-half pound small-mouth bass Monday, which is the best bass caught so far this week.

Jimmy Maxwell is spending some time at the rifle range trying to top the scores turned in by Charles Halbert.

The sixth and last long term camp for this summer at Camp Pioneer will open Sunday August 1 and run through Sunday, August 2. All scouts who wish to attend this session should contact his scoutmaster, Ben Owen of Hope is helping to arrange transportation to camp.

Bitter Reprieve

THE STORY: From the funeral home, Sterling phones Miss Wilson to meet him at Walverton's Floral Shop. He tells her to bring along the packet he had mailed to her from Edgemoor Club.

XXVIII
Sterling was engaged with a florist in the back of the large store when Isabel Wilson joined him. She was a tiny, seriously countenanced woman, nearing 30.

Sterling introduced her to the florist. "I had Miss Wilson come here," he explained, "to make sure that you have all the necessary instructions, with the time so unfortunately limited."

To his secretary, Sterling added, "I can't help but help her in selecting flowers for the piece. It's something I'm wholly ignorant about."

"I'll do my best Mr. Sterling." When the florist turned toward a large glass case, Miss Wilson opened her bag and held out to Sterling the packet he had mailed to her. "You wanted this?"

"Oh, yes. Thanks." It was still as he had mailed it, in the outer envelope he had inscribed to her, just torn open at one end.

Taking it from her, Sterling said, "Stick along here, please, while I use the telephone booth. I'll be back with you."

Inside the telephone booth, standing against the glass door to conceal his activity, Sterling took a flat cardboard box from inside his coat. Before starting toward home, he had emptied some things from it into a dresser drawer. He also had brought a piece of white wrapping paper and some twine.

He slit open one end of the inner envelope and extracted the packet of one hundred dollar bills from its wrapping of Edgemoor letterheads. He put the money in the box, making use of the sheet of tissue that was still in it. He wrapped the box in the white paper and bound it with twine.

There was yet another step in Sterling's methodical procedure. From his inside coat pocket he took a thick sheaf of correspondence and attached bond circulars.

The sheaf of papers was divided twice, lifted snugly into the large envelope from which Sterling had just removed the money. When enclosed in the outer envelope, it made a packet identical in appearance and bulk to the one he had dropped through the Edgemoor mail-slot Friday morning. Slipping the bulky envelope into his inner pocket, Sterling experienced a sense of relief.

Sterling put the wrapped box in a side pocket, then gave his attention to the telephone. He had been working quickly, according to a precise plan. He dialed an East Side number.

A woman's voice answered querulously. Her answer was sharply discouraging when Sterling asked for Harry Bindle. "Get him at his office later," she said. "This is seriously important," Sterling said.

"Well, wait." Bindle's voice rasped over the wire. "What is it?"

"Marcus Sterling." "You! Do you think I want..." "Don't worry, Bindle. I'm in a booth."

"Okay, but I do business in my office, not in my home. I'm coming by breakfast. I get to my office at 11. I gave you till 12 noon."

"I've called you at your home because I wanted to get you early."

"Well..." "I want to get the money to you."

"You got it... all of it... ten grand?"

"Of course. That's what you

Woman Who Stood Off Band of Convicts, Praised

Belle Glade, Fla., July 28 (UP)

Mabel Foy, who singlehandedly stood off a band of escaped Negro convicts, killing one of them with a 22-calibre rifle, was praised by officers for her heroism today.

Miss Foy called police yesterday to get the body of Roy Williams, 17-year-old life tinner, and round up two other convicts on Torrey Island in Lake Okeechobee.

Six Negro convicts escaped Sunday from the Belle Glade prison farm, and the trio made their way to the lonely island. They attempted to steal her car Monday night.

Miss Foy reported, but it bogged down on the road which leads from the island.

Tuesday night they returned, she said, and the barking of Miss Foy's dog aroused her to action. Taking her small rifle, she walked into the yard and ordered the men to leave. They started to run, and Miss Foy fired a shot to speed them. When prison guards came at day, light they found Williams dead, 100 yards from the house. They soon captured Doyle Simmons, 24, of Tampa, and Jimmy Thorpe, 17, of Titusville.

Jay Gold's Son Sued for Halting Check Payment

New York, July 29 (UP) — Frank Jay Gould, 70, millionaire son of the late railroad tycoon, Jay Gould, was sued in federal court today for payment on a $400,000 check he gave a French woman for hiding him from the Nazis during the occupation of France.

The suit was brought by Mme. Anne Vilbert De Salgigne who said Gould gave her the check in 1944 in appreciation of the refuge she gave him in her Riviera Villa, after he fled Paris. She said he ordered the United States Trust company of New York to stop payment on the check when she attempted to cash it in 1947. The bank was named as co-defendant.

Medieval beds consisted of mattresses placed on top of boards. They were ornate, but uncomfortable.

Zion Church to Hold Homecoming Sunday, August 1

About 100 years ago early settlers of the county met in the shade of a tree in north Hempstead and organized a Baptist Church—Zion Church located near Bingen.

Most of the early Baptist ministers of Hempstead and Southwest Arkansas have preached at the church which has been rebuilt three times and is now one of the best in that section.

On Sunday, August 1, Zion church will hold its annual homecoming. The Bingen community invites all members and the public to attend.

At one time, the eggplant was believed to be poisonous.

Neyland, Tatam Featured in Coaching School

Knoxville, Tenn., July 28 —(UP)—Tennessee Coach Bob Neyland and Maryland's Jim Tatam were to be featured "instructors" today at the opening session of the three-day Tennessee Secondary Schools Athletic Assn. clinic here. Some 100 coaches from throughout the country were at the University of Tennessee to hear Neyland review last season's gridiron highlights and discuss offense and defense trends this season.

Tatum was to address the coaches on the split "T" formation, while S. D. Jackson, noted authority on rules, will discuss new rule changes and interpretations. Tomorrow, basketball will vie with football for the interest of the mentors.

Memphis Youth Suffering From Leukemia

Boston, July 28 —(UP)—Alan Stevenson, 13, of Memphis, Tenn., was in "fair" condition at children's hospital today as physicians began an effort to save him from the ravages of leukemia. The boy was placed under observation last night when he was admitted to the Medical Center after his mother brought him here by plane from Memphis.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler
Copyright, 1947
By King Features Syndicate.

New York, July 28 — As Henry Wallace continues on his lucrative way passing the hat and raising enormous sums for a program largely consistent with the political purposes of the Communist treason, the collection for the so-called "Horch" fund stands at about $5,000. That is enough and, for the second time, I am trying to turn it off and close the account. This collection was started by an essay depicting the condition of James and Katherine Murray, who live in a little fourth-floor walkup in an old tenement at 216 East 49th street, New York. They are, to the life, the luckless, poor American common man and his wife for whom Wallace was wailed his savioristic political concern up and down the country. The Murrays and all their like are, in fact, old Babbalanja's principal means of political support and it was ironic that the Murrays proved to be victims of the shakeout whereby the great 26-story landmark of the Roerich cult on Riverside Drive was returned to the private ownership of Wallace's rich friend, Louis L. Horch.

In a mess of those mysterious court proceedings which were known by the euphemistic name of "reorganization" or "refinancing," Horch got possession of the big building which is now one of the most profitable apartment houses on the block. Originally, Horch and the members of the cult had publicly proclaimed that it was their gift to the people of the United States. However, this appears to have been one of those publicity plants whereby a man gets credit for a fine act of public generosity but first makes sure that he can't be taken up. At the time of the "reorganization" you couldn't find tenants for the over-financed apartment houses in New York. Now the joss-house is a gold mine and the suckers are out.

A few weeks ago, following receipt of a letter from Mrs. Murray describing the condition of her invalid husband, a tubercular veteran of the first world war and their hand-to-mouth financial condition, I reported that their dead assets included a $1,000 bond to the Roerich museum. Although I called on them personally, I may have been guilty of carelessness reporting, for I identified them as James and Katherine Minnerley. The reasons are that Mrs. Murray bought the bond in her maiden name in October, 1922, and, in depicting herself to me as a creditor of a typical bond person of those days, she used the name that appeared in the deal on the books. They were married on Aug. 2, 1929. Moreover, during the long illness of Mr. Murray, she continued on the payroll of the consolidated Edison company, where she worked as a scrubwoman, as Katherine Minnerley. She is now retired on a small consolidated pension in that name, which also appears on their letterbox, along with "Murray."

Nations Finest Golfers Open Brookfield Meet

Buffalo, N. Y., July 28 —(UP)—The nation's finest golfers took on a wind-swept Brookfield Country Club layout today in their quest for the 45th annual Western Open. Installed as pre-tournament favorite, as usual, was Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., top money winner of the year. Close behind him was John Palmer of Badin, N. C., the defending titlist.

Best time-up round reported was a scorching 67, one over the course record and five under par, by Fred Hawkins, a slightly-built youngster from Antioch, Ill.

George Shoux of San Bruno, Calif., and Jim McHal, Wynnewood, Pa., amateur, had practice 68's and Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N.J., had a 69.

In a game that was 1-0 for five innings, the Hope Merchants put on the steam during the sixth and seventh to take the Prescott All-stars last night by a score of 6-0. Fergusson and Cooter Willis engaged in a pitching duel that was really hot until the Hope boys turned loose in the sixth inning. Fergusson took 9 by the strikeout route in five innings, and Roy Taylor relieved in the sixth, striking out 6 in the last two innings. Willis for Prescott struck out 6, going all the way. Hope got 8 hits to 5 for Prescott, each team charged with 1 error.

Roy Taylor and Mutt Fergusson also led in the hitting with Taylor getting 2 for 3 and Fergusson for 4. The entire Hope team played heads-up ball, getting a beautiful double play, Stanford to D. Ross to Hammons.

Tonight the strong Earle's team from Texarkana will come to Hope and the Hope Merchants are sure to have their hands full. This is a hard hitting team and is considered to be as good as any team in the twin city league. The game is scheduled for 8:15, and a large crowd is expected to attend. This will be the last game for the Hope boys before the go into the District tournament at Texarkana next week.

The pension is not enough for a living, even added to Mr. Murray's $60 a month from the Veterans Administration. Therefore, Mrs. Murray has continued work as a hotel chambermaid.

They are members of the parish of St. Boniface at Second avenue and 10th street and the Rev. Joseph Urbanowski, an assistant pastor, has so certified.

How many other Jim and Katherine Murrays were shaken out in the reorganization of the lamaseyry bank? I do not know. Mrs. Murray's bank is a beautiful bank-note job, but in the fine print you discover that she bought a $1,000 interest in an issue of 150,000 "secured by a second an subordinate lien" trailing behind a mortgage of $1,025,000.

There is also an "unconditional guarantee" of principal and interest signed by Horch. By reading the long and complex legal record you might discover why this did not protect the common man. One reason would be New Deal lawyers. For no frivolous reason did they make this record so long and complex.

In September, 1932, Mrs. Murray having had rumors, got on a bus and rode up to the Roerich museum to see her investment. The big shots of culture were throwing a reception for the common man and Louis Horch was trying to get them to trust and love him. Mrs. Murray thought the place was real pretty and someone told her there were silk sheets in some of the monkish cells. She saw old Nick Roerich, the guru who had Babbalanja flapping around in space, but of course, she did not presume to speak to him. Actually, hell was peeping among the directors and boardholders, but a poor Irish scrubwoman, working nights to support a consumptive husband, couldn't be expected to know that a first mortgage of $1,025,000 stood ahead of her $1,000 bond. Horch knew it, but she didn't.

The response of the readers of this column began slowly over the Fourth of July holiday. In a few days, however, Miss Maud Towart, who handles the mail, was snowed under. Each check, bill and letter had to be listed, at least, and she has done little else since. We can't answer or even acknowledge them all.

Some of the letters were slightly political and contemptuous of Wallace's attitude toward the common man. Many were religious, covering donations in memory of dear departed. There was a $10 check from James K. McGuinness, of Hingham, a New York Irishman who fought with the 77th division in France and may like to know that James Murray was in the same outfit. The largest single gift was a check for $1,000 from a man, a Jew. If that is pertinent, whose condition was that his name should not be published.

None of these gifts is deductible from income for tax purposes.

Last Wednesday Mrs. Murray came to the office and received a check for $3,000. Some checks had not yet cleared at the Chemical National Bank where the account was being handled by William Whitman, the vice-president, so the final payment was postponed. As soon as I can light in my travels I will hand over to the Murrays the remainder of the fund, probably a little over $1,500, bringing the total above $5,000, and we will close the books.

The Murrays have asked me to thank all those who have been so generous, and I do and for myself, too. It has been a fine experience. I will transmit an account, but few papers will want to print so many names of persons outside their own circulation. Therefore, I will turn out a complete list, consolidating the anonymous items in one entry, and each paper may select its local names.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh & Fullerton, Jr.

New York, July 29 —(AP)—Three of the top four money-winning race horses of the world — Stryker, Armed and Assault — have had to retire in recent months and the other, Citation, is temporarily on the shelf. One explanation is the "hard" tracks that some racing plants favor in order to show faster times. Another is just plain overwork from trying to make some dough. In racing, just as in other businesses, it's quite easy for a rich guy to become overworked. The poor can't afford a breakdown.

Sports Before Your Eyes
Reports on the Gus Lesnevich-Freddie Mills fight (if you can call it that) in London say the announcer opened with "My lords, ladies and gentlemen. . . . You can expect Harry Balogh to try that at St. Nick's almost any night." Carl Erskine, new Dodger pitcher from Fort Worth, has pitched just two innings of major league ball and got credit for two victories. They should pitch him against Bill Serena, Buffalo Bisons newsmen, who socked the first pitch tossed to him in the International League for a pinch homer. Serena belted 57 home runs for Lubbock, Tex., last season.

Cleaning The Cuff
Buck Hood, managing editor of the Austin, Tex., American-Statesman, went to beat in Southwestern Conference football without consulting his own sports staff. The boys now want to get it into the Buck next December. Don't forget, the M. E. can always have the last words. —"You're fired."

Marriage Vows Stressed

Apparently marriage is going to be a much serious adventure in the future than it has been in the past. Heretofore with thousands of men and women it was one of the things they did on the spur of the moment, if they happened to feel romantically inclined, but that they didn't have to worry about because it was always one of the things that they could take, or leave, as the spirit moved them.

Girls didn't give as much consideration to selecting a husband as they did to picking out a new hat, and when a man lost his taste for his old wife he swapped her off for a new model, and that was that. Of course, it wasn't according to Hoyle, but then marriage has never been one of the games in which there have always been a thousand exceptions to every rule.

So we have had the bobby-sox marriages, and the marriages of boys who had never earned a nickel in their lives and who brought their wives home for their families to support, and the repeater marriages of men and women who had acquired the chronic divorce habit.

And it has all made a pretty sort of mess.

Glad Tidings

Therefore, it is glad tidings of great joy to learn that a movement is on foot to take marriage out of the gambling class and make it the most responsible act of an individual's life. Curiously enough, the reformation has started with an effort being made to protect wives against defaulting husbands. It used to be that only rich women were the victims of trifling men who married to get wives to support them, but nowadays when so many competent business women command good salaries they are the prey of the Weary Willies who never do another lick of work after they get married.

No sight is more common or more pathetic than that of the working wife who has toiled all day at her task and then has to stop, as she comes home, and buy the food and cook the meals and clean the house and wash the clothes of her parasitic husband. Apparently, however, the days of the human sponge are numbered, as many of the big business firms are refusing to employ married women. And while this may lessen the number of marriages, it will give the women who do get married husbands who will cherish and protect them, instead of being slave-drivers.

Also, and this is another modern improvement, many judges are overhauling the divorce racket and trying to make it less of a graft. This goes for both sexes, for neither one often shows any heart or conscience in dealing with a situation that is filled with tragedy for all right-thinking people. Men callously leave their wives and children to starve, while they spend their money on having affairs with girls young enough to be their daughters. And there are thousands of women who live luxuriously on the alimony squeezed out of their ex-husbands against whom they have brought fake charges.

It is a matter of common knowledge that there is no debt that is so hard to collect as that which men owe their families. Furthermore, in trying to force divorced men to pay their alimony it has put a crimp in marriage, for not many husbands can afford to support two wives and the kids. So maybe we will get back to the one wife standard, after all.

Railway Settles for Jim Crow Suit Action

New York, July 28. — (UP) — A Negro union official who sued the Southern Railway company for $50,000 for a Jim Crow arrest received a $2,000 out-of-court settlement, it was disclosed today.

The suit was filed in Federal Court by Thomas T. Patterson, representative of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters (AF of L), who charged that agents of the railroad attempted to force him into a Jim Crow car while he was traveling through Virginia. He refused, and was arrested and fined $5 in Charlottesville for disorderly conduct.
